INSPIRED BY A PAKISTANI SHOW

TV is often known for drawing inspiration from Bollywood flicks and international shows, but rarely does an inspiration come from across the border. The latest soap inspired by a popular Pakistani serial all set to hit the airwaves, is Sony TV's Kuch Toh Log Kahenge set against the backdrop of a hospital. Apparently the show that revolves around a young doctor who falls in love with a much senior doctor, is inspired by the Pakistani serial Dhoop Kinara. This Pakistani serial was very popular across countries years ago. When contacted, producer Rajan Shahi said, "I can't comment. It's the channel's prerogative to comment on any aspect regarding the show at the moment." Danish Khan, channel's VP marketing, didn't revert to our text message.

Actresses bonding big time in Yeh Rishta Kya Kehlata Hai!

Rajan Shahi's Yeh Rishta Kya Kehlata on Star Plus is going great guns even after two and a half years. The simple story of Aakshara and Natikha and their relationship with family members depicting real life day to day situation is connecting with the viewers. Recently the show bounced back to position one in terms of TRP's across all channels silently without any special drama in the show. The show recently showed Gangaur sequence where in all the actresses were dressed in the typical traditional attire. The show is showing real authentic Udaipur and all the actresses be it Hina Khan, Pooja Joshi, Latia Sabarwal or Sonali Verma, bond very well off-sorean too and help each other in scenes. They actually feel like real family members and have lot of fun and frolic among themselves from cracking jokes to sharing their home cooked food and surprising each other with a special treat. This is one show where at least all actresses bond with each other instead of the regular cat fights or just being the jealous babes!
